TALK ABOUT US:

#ArenaExclusion #ArenaStage #ArenaStageDC #DCTheatre #ACreativeDC #ExperienceDC #VisitDC

Arena Stage is built on the land of the Piscataway people of the Algonquin-speaking tribes, as well as the lands of the Native American people of the greater Anacostia, Potomac, and Tidewater regions.
The arts have always been on the front line of fight against fear. Learning and understanding dramatic stories of politics and power makes us more informed as a democracy, and can shed light on how we can come together as a nation. Theater illuminates the past, validates the present, and leads us screaming into the future.

When I first arrived at Arena, I focused our mission on American artists—writers, performers, designers. American work is as diverse as this country is wide, and I aimed to reflect this diversity. Many theater companies had a chip on their shoulder about American writers and looked over to England and Europe for their writers. I wanted to change that without excluding international artists, but I felt their work could be focused on providing a different viewpoint to American work or American ideas (as evidenced in our recent production of Angels in America, Part One: Millennium Approaches directed by János Szász).

As we dug into the American canon, I internalized the connection that Arena’s home in Washington, D.C., meant it was a home for American politics. In Washington, D.C., unlike any other American city, we are in the belly of the beast. Politics is Washington, and Washington is politics. These are our blood lines. We are the city that loves to talk politics from the first moment of waking up, to when our heads hit the pillow.

The Power Plays cycle is a voice for both of these visions—to raise the voices and stories of unheard Americans from all points in history, and to spur political debate as we search for truth and critique power. It commissions one story per decade since the founding of our country in the 1770s up until the present day.

Enter Exclusion, our 10th Power Play commission, an incisive, scathing, yet hysterically funny exposé of the entertainment business that does just this. A contemporary view of the horrors of the Chinese Exclusion Act of 1882 and the craziness of Hollywood, it’s about who gets to tell the stories we hear and what happens when the original storyteller gets pushed to the side.

Exclusion is a very American story told by the brilliant Ken Lin, and brought to life by this wonderful company led by the electrifying director Trip Cullman. Because we should be continuously examining what it means to be American, and the values that are important to our country and our families.

At Arena Stage, we produce and present all that is passionate, exuberant, profound, deep, and dangerous in the American spirit. How I love that American spirit. This spirit is felt deeply in today’s play, and I hope in all of you every time you visit Arena Stage.

I am about to take my own personal journey with my own deep and dangerous spirit. Thank you for these 25 years. I know we will see each other whenever we hear great stories like this one.

Artistic Director

This production is dedicated to the memory of Alan Paller and Hank Schlosberg, whose generosity and kindness has been instrumental in Arena’s success.
Proudly Shaping the Local Landscape
How fitting to have a Power Play premiere as Molly Smith’s final production before she passes the baton as Arena Stage’s resident artistic director. The past 13 years I’ve spent as executive producer at Arena have been full of adventure, challenges, highs, lows, and, most of all, feisty artistic ambition.

I joined Arena while the organization was in the midst of construction of the Mead Center, with offices in Crystal City, shops in Arlington and Washington, D.C., Community Engagement and rehearsal space at 14th & T, and performance spaces in Crystal City and at U Street’s Lincoln Theatre. That time is a world away now. Molly shared her grand vision for the building, and we dreamt about what we could achieve. Then the Mead Center opened with a glorious homecoming and our iconic production of Oklahoma!

Molly fought for Oklahoma! One of her great skills as an artist is seeing possibilities and finding the gold hidden inside, particularly with classic American musicals. So many were skeptical of that show choice and she proved that it was THE right choice to open the Mead Center, bringing Arena Stage into the next century while remaining true to Arena’s core values and mission.

I coined the notion that Molly is responsible for ambition and I am responsible for capacity. We work together to keep these in balance—though, of course, I have ambitions and Molly respects capacity. One should never stop an artist—or oneself—from dreaming the big dreams. We do, however, have to take time to consider how to achieve the dreams, and when necessary, how to identify the public good of any venture that uses the resources and capacity our community has made available to us. Molly is open to the process, embraces that challenge, and has been a smart partner.

As we enjoy this production of Kenneth Lin’s Exclusion, I also applaud Molly’s and Arena’s commitment to commissioning new work to strengthen the American canon. Both Molly throughout her career, and Arena throughout its history, have a multitude of examples of premiering new plays that have gone on to success. Some of that is well known and includes Broadway, and some may be less seen but equally important as plays that are first cultivated here then move to other resident theaters around the country.

Over the years we’ve had some endeavors that that were not always ready for prime time. Sometimes the artists don’t align as we hoped, sometimes audiences aren’t in the mood for what we put on stage, sometimes the plays need more gestation time. However, our batting average has held up well beyond the performance of our neighbors down the street at Nationals Park.

The achievements of Molly’s ambition are too many to list. So, suffice to say I am proud of what we accomplished together over these years and admire all that Molly curated with Arena over this quarter century.

I am personally excited for Molly to make her next adventure. Here’s to you, Molly, and to your future ambitions, whether on stage, in your cabin, or on your continuing explorations and dreams made true!

Why do we return to history so often? Is it as simple as what our teachers tell us: “Those who do not know the past are doomed to repeat it”? Why do we continue to make plays, films, and novels with the tagline “based on a true story”? The stories that prevail most often are ones told with pride: stories of underdogs and victorious battles are told time and again until they are understood to be fact.

Yet at each level of this storytelling, pieces get taken out. As pointed out by Michel-Rolph Trouillot in his book Silencing the Past: Power and the Production of History, a narrative that is truly “complete,”—that said, one that includes a recollection of all events—“would sound as a meaningless cacophony even to the narrator.” It is, in fact, the distillation of history that allows us to find the story that renders it digestible and attractive to the listener.

But who decides what gets taken out, or what becomes the “true” version of events? Whose stories are we being told? Whose stories have we grown up believing? Who has been left out, and who are we still waiting to hear?

“I push the deformed into my dreams, which are in Chinese, the language of impossible stories.” — Maxine Hong Kingston, The Woman Warrior

The Page Act of 1875 was the first of many Chinese Exclusion acts passed by the United States government, marking the end of open borders. The Page Act specifically barred Chinese women from entering the United States. Seven years after that, the Chinese Restriction Act, which is now known as the Chinese Exclusion Act, was signed into law, prohibiting the entry of all Chinese people into the United States. The Chinese Exclusion Act was the first and only major United States law that prevented all members of a specific national group from immigrating to the country. First written to last only ten years, the Chinese Exclusion Act was ultimately extended “indefinitely,” and would not be repealed until 1943. Even then, a yearly quota restriction of 105 Chinese immigrants remained in place until 1968.

The omission and persecution of Chinese people was written into American law for 93 years.

The exclusion of Chinese people from the American experience stretched far beyond the gates of immigration. As a population, Chinese immigrants and Chinese Americans have been left out of the narrative of United States history since their arrival in this country.
The United States' first transcontinental railroad is now mostly remembered for its role in uniting both sides of the country and for strengthening America's key role in international relations and trade by opening up the market for goods across the country. The railroad is seen as a key point of pride in traditional American history, and is largely heralded as a feat of “American” labor. What is left out of this story? The transcontinental railroad was, for the most part, built by underpaid Chinese laborers, who had immigrated to the United States during the California Gold Rush. These Chinese workers were even kept out of the photos celebrating the laying of the final railroad spike, even while records indicate it was placed by Chinese men.

When not erasing Chinese stories from the historical narrative, some of the most powerful forms of American storytelling, from journalism to film and television, have depicted Chinese people only through offensive stereotyping and expectations. The “Yellow Peril” rhetoric of the late 1800s treated Chinese people as a threat to the Western world, while the early years of Hollywood built on this mindset to represent Chinese people only through traits of exoticism or otherness. For Chinese women in particular, racialized and sexualized stereotypes prevailed, such as the “Dragon Lady” villainess.

While perhaps the offensive depictions seen on screen might not be as blatant as they once were, the lack of Chinese and Asian people in positions of power still leads to upsetting consequences, such as Asian stereotypes still being treated as the punchline of a joke, the “exotic” nature of a Chinese woman being played for sexuality, or even just the lack of Asian material that is produced and the similar lack of Asian talent that gets hired.

“I made a promise to myself when writing this show to give Asian actors a chance to do all of the things they never get to do.” — Kenneth Lin

Kenneth Lin’s Exclusion explores these issues through a brave world of comedy, debate, and artistry. Set in present-day Hollywood, the land of storytelling, Exclusion puts a magnifying glass on the personalities and power structures that create the larger than life worlds we see on small and big screens. Each of Lin’s characters fight for control over which narrative gets told, whether it be on the screen for the world to hear, or in how each of their own stories play out in reality.

Through the act of dramatizing history, audiences and communities are invited into the conversation beyond the role of a silent listener. They are asked to invest in the characters of a story beyond the lines of a textbook, and see them as active participants in the lives they might lead today.

Perhaps when we sit in our history classes, and dates and times are spoken at us—or when we hear certain names so often (and others barely at all), we develop our own understanding of the past without ever really listening to what these narratives are saying. What happens when the ones who are not invested in the complications of reality are the powerful storytellers? In the world of Exclusion, the characters of Lin’s Power Play remind us: there is a difference between the story that wants to be told and the truth that needs to be heard.
At Camp Arena Stage, campers ages 8 to 15 spend the full day learning by doing. Guided by our teaching corps of professional artists and educators, they explore, discover, and create to their heart’s content! Registration is now open for all three sessions.

MOLLY SMITH (Artistic Director) has served as artistic director since 1998. Her 40 directing credits at Arena Stage include large-scale musicals, like Catch Me If You Can, Anything Goes, Disney’s Newsies, Carousel, Fiddler on the Roof, Oklahoma!, My Fair Lady, The Music Man, Cabaret, South Pacific; new plays, like Celia and Fidel, Sovereignty, The Originalist, Camp David, Legacy of Light, The Women of Brewster Place, How I Learned to Drive; and classics like Mother Courage and Her Children, A Moon for the Misbegotten, The Great White Hope, and All My Sons. Her directorial work has also been seen Off-Broadway at 59E59 in New York, Portland Center Stage, Canada’s Shaw Festival, The Court Theatre, The Old Globe, Asolo Repertory, Berkeley Repertory, Trinity Repertory, Toronto’s Tarragon Theatre, Montreal’s Centaur Theatre and Perseverance Theater in Juneau, Alaska, which she founded and ran from 1979-1998. Molly has been a leader in new play development for over 40 years. She is a great believer in first, second, and third productions of new work and has championed projects, including Dear Evan Hansen; Next to Normal; Passion Play, a cycle; and How I Learned to Drive. She led the re-invention of Arena Stage, focusing on the architecture and creation of the Mead Center for American Theater and positioning Arena Stage as a national center for American artists through its artistic programming. During her time with the company, Arena Stage has workshoped more than 100 productions, produced 39 world premieres, staged numerous second and third productions, and been an important part of nurturing nine projects that went on to have a life on Broadway. In 2014, Molly made her Broadway debut directing The Velocity of Autumn, following its critically acclaimed run at Arena Stage. She was awarded honorary doctorates from American University and Towson University. In 2018, she was honored as Person of the Year by the National Theatre Conference and inducted into the Washington DC Hall of Fame. In 2020, she was awarded the Director of Distinction in Cairo, Egypt, from the Academy of Arts. During the COVID-19 pandemic in 2020, she developed the concept for two online films, May 22, 2020 and The 51st State, overseeing the production direction as well as directing pieces within the films. She also spearheaded a variety of other new online content, including a weekly talk show Molly's Salon, during the live performance hiatus.

EDGAR DOBIE (Executive Producer) Born in Vernon, British Columbia, a village next to the Rocky Mountains (three years after Arena had its first performance in 1950), I am one of five brothers raised by my Dad Edgar, a mechanic and small businessman, and Mom Connie, a telephone operator and union organizer. I am the only Dobie to make a career in theater. Luckily for me, drama was an arts elective I was offered at the tender age of 12 so I hung up my hockey skates and joined the drama class, led by teacher Paddy Malcolm and her fledgling Powerhouse Community Theater after school. By the time I graduated from high school, we volunteers had built ourselves a 200-seat, fully equipped theater on its own piece of land in the center of town and found a sold-out audience for the full season of plays we had on offer. That experience taught me so many lessons about the power of theater to foster collaboration and share meaningful stories, as well as the public values that attach themselves to building a safe place where everyone is welcome. All those lessons served me well as a managing leader and producer both sides of the border and both sides of the commercial and non-profit theater divide. Arriving here in Southwest with my good wife Tracy and our daughter Greta Lee in 2009 makes me feel like I am well-equipped to do a good job for you all. I am honored to have been recognized for my service to, and leadership of, the Washington, D.C.-area theatre community as a recipient of Theatre Washington’s inaugural Victor Shargai Leadership Award in 2022.

This theater operates under an agreement between the League of Resident Theatres and Actors’ Equity Association. The actors and stage managers are members of Actors’ Equity Association, the Union of Professional Actors and Stage Managers in the United States. The scenic, costume, lighting and sound designers in LORT theaters are represented by United Scenic Artists, Local USA-829 of the IATSE. The Director and Choreographer are members of the STAGE DIRECTORS AND CHOREOGRAPHERS SOCIETY, a national theatrical labor union. Arena Stage is a constituent of the Theatre Communications Group (TCG), the national organization for the American theater.

THANK YOU USHERS

2022/23 SEASON
The heroes behind the scenes at Arena Stage are often unseen. Allow us to turn the spotlight toward two of our incredible craftsmen retiring at the end of the 2022/23 Season.

For 37 years, our lighting supervisor Chris Lewton has contributed creativity and a commitment to excellence.

And for 46 years, Lance Pennington, our associate properties director, has made Arena's stage settings beautiful. Each have significantly contributed to Arena’s national reputation as the theater where every designer wants to create their work. Thank you both for all the magic you have created at Arena Stage. We wish you many more magical moments in retirement.

YOU MAY PLAN TO LIVE UNTIL YOU’RE 150—AND WE HOPE YOU DO—but you still need an estate plan!

Everyone needs an estate plan to ensure their assets benefit the people and causes they value the most. Please consider leaving a gift in your will or designating Arena as a beneficiary of your retirement plan or Donor Advised Fund to help future generations enjoy theater. If you have already included Arena, let us know so we can include you in the Full Circle Society.
