Arena Stage is built on the land of the Piscataway people of the Algonquin-speaking tribes, as well as the lands of the Native American people of the greater Anacostia, Potomac, and Tidewater regions.

Cambodian Rock Band comes to our Kreeger Theater after a long journey interrupted by a number of unforeseen circumstances.

I don't think I'm speaking only for myself when I say it's a proud moment to share this production with you—and a bit of a relief. This is a fabulous story and an authentic production that deserves to be heard and felt. Thank you all for being here today.

You may be asking the natural question, Edgar, what was that journey? Lauren Yee wrote this compelling story, and the play was expertly produced by Signature Theatre in New York. So expertly produced that other producers were inspired to option the rights for a national tour. Arena was part of that tour during our 2021/22 Season. However sturdy a theater production appears, there is a lot of delicacy in keeping it together. The tour fell apart, not because of any lack of desire for the artistic product, but because contracts and tours are very complex. Timing was also not a friend, as theaters were trying to rebuild out of 18 months of darkness from the pandemic. So, the show was cancelled out of our season then, and we promised it would be back.

Because the original plan was a tour, there were several theaters invested in this production. After the single producing team was unsuccessful, five individual theaters decided to band together and partner on the production. We joined with the Alley Theatre, Berkeley Repertory Theatre, Center Theatre Group, and ACT Theatre/5th Avenue.

As you may have heard, Center Theatre Group has since canceled its participation as it acknowledged the need to take significant actions to balance its operating model. The original Signature Theatre production has remained the core of this partnership, however as time has moved on, so have several members of the cast. The impact for Arena is that our plans for receiving the production have to shift to support the new artists. The delicacy of the artform is ever-present.

I like to have themes to my season of notes in our programs, and this season seems like a good one to dive into how we manage that delicacy of producing theater. What we produce is perishable. It is there for a few hours and then it is gone. Every piece is handcrafted.

The pandemic taught us a lot about that delicacy and our ephemeral nature. Most importantly, the lack of live theater emphasized to me the beauty and the need for live theater. I will make the leap that by being here you agree, or that if this is your first time with Arena or at a live theater performance, that you leave today enjoying our time together, fleeting as it may be.

Executive Producer
Theater must entertain and, if it passes that bar, it can do a whole lot more.

Because you are reading this, you’ve most likely had at least one fantastically entertaining theatrical experience. Or if this is your first time—Welcome!—what a great show to start with. Thank you for joining us, whatever your path to getting here has been.

There is so much in Cambodian Rock Band that entertains and more: it delights, it side-eyes power, it explores the depths of human brutality and perseverance, it quite literally rocks! There will be no lip-syncing here tonight. The music, which merges vintage Cambodian rock numbers with songs written by the Cambodian American band Dengue Fever, is performed live by this dynamic company. If you aren’t already familiar with this music, I foresee a music streaming deep-dive in your future (just in time for the release of Dengue Fever’s new album).

History is brought to life with exquisite visual and aural design by our creative team. Duch, our narrator and antagonist, is so witty and charming that he tugs on our sympathies despite our knowledge of the many horrors committed by the Khmer Rouge.

And I’ve saved my favorite part for last: there is a humorous and deep parent/adult child relationship at the heart of this story. The music and history are all woven around Chum and his daughter Neary, as he tries to maintain his relationship with her while protecting her from the truth of his past. As I watch their scenes, I sit with these questions: What do our parents hide from us and why? What details of their past do parents owe their children? Does trauma leak through generations even if it remains unspoken? Is there healing to be found in speaking of the past to our loved ones?

Weaving all these story elements together is no small feat, but Lauren Yee is one of our finest modern playwrights. She masterfully tucks humor and history together into a basket of music in a way that teaches us to better appreciate the whole lives our parents had before they became our parents.

Cambodian Rock Band is the type of storytelling I love to watch as an audience member: show me our history, but also give me the tools to process it. Our artists are doing just that—grappling with the past, daring to make jokes about it, and setting it to music.

Associate Artistic Director
In 1953, after 90 years as a French protectorate, Cambodia won its independence.

The Southeast Asian country was now the Kingdom of Cambodia. In 1955, general elections were held. Prince Norodom Sihanouk, who had abdicated as king in pursuit of a political career, and his newly established party, Sangkum Reastr Niyum (People's Socialist Community), triumphed: the Sangkum party won every seat in Parliament, and the Prince was appointed prime minister. The Sihanouk era had begun.

The Prince envisioned postcolonial Cambodia as a modern nation. He sought to improve the country's infrastructure and to foster a strong national identity (which often meant harsh punishment for far-left dissidents). To Sihanouk, modernity also required cultural relevance, and the arts and entertainment boomed in Cambodia during the 1950s and '60s. But the country's music enjoyed a particular renaissance—for it was during this era that rock and roll came to Cambodia.

Even before the arrival of rock and roll, Cambodia's popular music had incorporated foreign influences. While the country was still a protectorate, folk musicians integrated Western instruments into their ensembles and Latin beats into their songs. By the 1960s, the youth in urban Cambodia were hooked on yé-yé music, French pop named after the common refrain “yeah, yeah.” Then, as the United States’ military presence in neighboring Vietnam increased, English-language rock and roll became popular.

Throughout the 1960s and early '70s, Cambodian musicians recorded Khmer-language covers of foreign songs. But as a whole, Cambodia's rock was far more than a mere imitation of a Western form. Artists composed and recorded original songs that addressed national concerns and challenged contemporary attitudes; and both covers and original pieces combined Western-inspired melodies with a distinctly Cambodian sound. The music's unique identity was also embodied in its greatest stars. Singers such as Ros Serey Sothea and Sinn Sisamouth appealed to a wide audience with a modern sound that was complemented by traditional looks and performance styles. Other artists, such as Pan Ron and Liv Tek, epitomized the term “rock star” with their unrestrained, raucous performances.

By 1969, Cambodia was on the brink of a new political era. While Sihanouk ruthlessly contended with the country's far-left communist revolutionaries—whom he nicknamed the Khmer Rouge—he lost the support of urban Cambodians, who disapproved of his government's corruption. Finally, in March 1970, while Sihanouk was in France, General Lon Nol and Prince Sisowath Sirik Matak, both high-ranking government officials, orchestrated a coup with the unspoken permission of the United States. The Kingdom of Cambodia was now the Khmer Republic.

During the five years that followed, Cambodia was enmeshed in a civil war as the U.S.-backed Lon Nol government fought the tenacious Khmer Rouge. But in Phnom Penh, Cambodia's capital, the music persevered.

The sounds of rock and roll would not be quieted—not by the U.S. bombs dropped on eastern Cambodia in the name of the Vietnam War, not the rampant corruption within Lon Nol's government, or the growing number of Khmer Rouge guerilla fighters.

Then, on April 17, 1975, the Khmer Rouge breached Phnom Penh, and the music finally stopped. The war was over, and the victors swiftly instituted their vision for a new society. Over the next four years, approximately two million Cambodians would be exterminated by the Khmer Rouge, including ninety percent of the country's musicians. But miraculously, many of their recordings survived.

On the national stage, we are a leading voice for the power of this art form to lift the human spirit.

CENTER THEATRE GROUP

one of the nation’s preeminent arts and cultural organizations, is Los Angeles’ leading not-for-profit theatre company, which under the leadership of Managing Director / CEO Meghan Pressman and Producing Director Douglas C. Baker, and in collaboration with the four Associate Artistic Directors, Lindsay Allbaugh, Tyrone Davis, Neel Keller, and Kelley Kirkpatrick, programs seasons at the 736-seat Mark Taper Forum and 1,600 to 2,100-seat Ahmanson Theatre at The Music Center in Downtown Los Angeles, and the 317-seat Kirk Douglas Theatre in Culver City. In addition to presenting and producing the broadest range of theatrical entertainment in the country, Center Theatre Group is one of the country’s leading producers of ambitious new works through commissions and world premiere productions and a leader in interactive community engagement and education programs that reach across generations, demographics, and circumstances to serve Los Angeles. Founded in 1967, Center Theatre Group was led by Founding Artistic Director Gordon Davidson until 2005 when Michael Ritchie was the artistic director until his retirement in 2021; Snehal Desai has been appointed the organization’s next artistic director and will begin in August of 2023. Center Theatre Group has produced more than 700 productions across its three stages, including such iconic shows as Zoot Suit; Angels in America; The Kentucky Cycle; Biloxi Blues; Twilight: Los Angeles, 1992; Children of a Lesser God; Curtains; The Drowsy Chaperone; 9 to 5: The Musical; and Bengal Tiger at the Baghdad Zoo. ARENA STAGE LEADERSHIP

HANA S. SHARIF (Artistic Director) has enjoyed a multi-faceted theater career, including roles as an artistic leader, director, playwright, and producer with a specialty in strategic and cross-functional leadership. Hana began her professional career as an undergraduate student at Spelman College. From 1997 to 2003, Hana served as the co-founder and Artistic Director of Nasir Productions, a theater dedicated to underrepresented voices challenging traditional structure. Hana joined the Tony Award-winning regional theatre, Hartford Stage, in 2003. During her decade-long tenure at Hartford Stage, Hana served as the Associate Artistic Director, Director of New Play Development, and Artistic Producer. Hana launched the new play development program, expanded the community engagement and civic discourse initiatives, and developed and produced Tony, Grammy, Pulitzer, and Obie Award-winning shows. Starting in 2012, she served as Program Manager at ArtsEmerson, a leading world theater company based at Boston’s Emerson College. During her tenure at ArtsEmerson, Hana launched an Artists in Residency program, led a research program assessing barriers to inclusion across the region, and leveraged her regional theater experience to freelance produce for smaller theater companies looking to expand and restructure their administrative teams. Hana was Baltimore Center Stage’s Associate Artistic Director from 2014 to 2019 and was the architect of the innovative CS Digital program: a platform that pushes the boundaries of traditional theater and looks at the nexus point between art and technology. Her other achievements at Baltimore Center Stage included prototyping the Mobile Unit focused on historically underserved audiences, strengthening community engagement, producing multiple world and regional premieres, and helping to guide the theater through a multi-million dollar building renovation and rebranding effort. Hana became the first Black woman to lead a major regional theater in 2018 when she was named the Augustin Family Associate Artistic Director of The Repertory Theatre of St. Louis. During her tenure at The Rep, Hana guided the organization through a strategic alignment, revolutionized the New Works program, expanding access to underserved communities, and centering equity and anti-racism as the organization’s foundational values. Hana holds a BA from Spelman College and an MFA from the University of Houston. Hana is the recipient of USITT’s 2023 Distinguished Achievement Award, Spelman’s 2022 National Community Service Award, the 2009-10 Aetna New Voices Fellowship, EMC Arts Working Open Fellowship, and Theatre Communications Group (TCG) New Generations Fellowship. Hana is a member of The Black Theatre Commons (BTC). She serves on the board of directors for the TCG, BTC, and the Sprott Family Foundation.

EDGAR DOBIE (Executive Producer) Born in Vernon, British Columbia, a village next to the Rocky Mountains (three years after Arena had its first performance in 1950). I am one of five brothers raised by my Dad, Edgar, a mechanic and small businessman, and Mom Connie, a telephone operator and union organizer. I am the only Dobie to make a career in theater. Luckily for me, drama was an arts elective I was offered at the tender age of 12 so I hung up my hockey skates and joined the drama class, led by teacher Paddy Malcolm and her fledgling Powerhouse Community Theater after school. By the time I graduated from high school, we volunteered to build ourselves a 200-seat, fully equipped theater on its own piece of land in the center of town and found a sold-out audience for the full season of plays we had on offer. That experience taught me so many lessons about the power of theater to foster collaboration and share meaningful stories, as well as the public values that attach themselves to building a safe place where everyone is welcome. All those lessons served me well as a managing leader and producer both sides of the border and both sides of the commercial and non-profit theater divide. Arriving here in Southwost with my good wife Tracy and our daughter Greta Lee in 2009 makes me feel like I am well-equipped to do a good job for you all. I am honored to have been recognized for my service to, and leadership of, the Washington, D.C.-area theater community as a recipient of Theatre Washington’s inaugural Victor Shargai Leadership Award in 2022.
