When I came to Arena over 20 years ago, Washington, D.C., theaters were rarely producing world premieres.

Occasionally Woolly Mammoth and Signature would, but there was a dearth of new work. I came from Alaska with a passion for living writers and we created a conference called, ‘Who Needs New Plays?’ — a provocative title that drew a few hundred theater makers under a big white tent in our parking lot. Programs included a fainting couch where audience members would be questioned by a psychiatrist about why they were afraid of new plays, and invigorating panels opening everyone’s eyes to the pleasure of taking a risk on new work. Out of that crazy experience, more theaters began developing new work and the Kennedy Center created Page to Stage.

New work begets more new work and Washington is now known as a center nationally for launching new plays and musicals. I like to think our little conference struck a match that has turned into a city on fire with living writers. Along with playwright Karen Zacarías, Theatre Communications Group recently named Ken Ludwig as one of the most-produced playwrights of the 2019–2020 season. To have two Washingtonians on this list is quite the achievement.

This season, we’re presenting three world premieres and two plays that are in their second or third production and I’m thrilled to welcome Ken Ludwig back to Arena. Ken’s repertoire, by nature, is epic in scale. He’s recognized internationally for his adaptations of classics, like The Three Musketeers and Agatha Christie’s Murder on the Orient Express. He’s also one of the American theater’s finest comedic writers. It’s evident in farces like Fox on the Fairway and, of course, Lend Me A Tenor. Our audiences will remember Ken’s Baskerville: A Sherlock Holmes Mystery or our premiere of Shakespeare in Hollywood.

Dear Jack, Dear Louise is a departure from Ken’s usual writing, and I think it’s his finest play yet. True, there are fewer hijinks, less door slamming and only two actors; yet the play manages to capture all that we love about Ken’s voice — his ability to close the void between people with compassion and laughter.

The play is a love letter to Ken’s parents. Each time I read through the script, I’m swept into their romance. What is it about love stories that draw us in time and time again?

I think the answer is quite simple: love stories ask big questions. How does love change us? What are the limitations of love? What are we willing to risk for the person we love? Love stories are about the human condition and what it means to be human. At Arena, love stories are always included in our season planning sessions because they breathe new life into our mission and further our investigation of the American spirit.

Presenting a world premiere is an exciting time in the life of any theater. A commitment on the part of a writer, tenacity, perseverance, talent and a little bit of standing in the right place at the right time helps a new play land in the world. Arena’s production team, headed by the excellent Jackie Maxwell, has done a beautiful job in bringing this love story to the stage.

We are thrilled to present three world-premiere productions as part of our 70th Season — the second being Ken Ludwig’s Dear Jack, Dear Louise. Part of our commitment to building a healthy, dynamic and powerful artistic community can be found in our partnership with local writers like Ken. By presenting their work on our stages, we can better gauge what our immediate community is thinking about, what they value and, through the lens of our mission, what they envision the American identity to be.

We are fortunate to have a relationship with local writers like Ken who are part of the national discourse. Since moving into the Mead Center, we have managed to present the work of nationally recognized local playwrights like Karen Zacarías and John Strand. Our audiences may be familiar with Karen’s play Native Gardens, which was co-presented with the Guthrie Theater in Minneapolis, or Destiny of Desire, which was part of the Women’s Voices Theater Festival and was a recipient of an Edgerton Foundation New Play Award. Her voice has been instrumental in deepening the discourse around Latinx stories on our stages and in theaters across the nation.

John Strand’s The Originalist was born at Arena Stage in 2015 and has gone on to tremendous success; after its premiere at Arena, the production was remounted a few seasons later and played in Chicago, Sarasota, Pasadena and ultimately Off-Broadway. We’ve commissioned John on multiple occasions, but I am still in awe of what he captured in Justice Scalia — a polarizing figure teeming with pathos and humanity.

We also support the work of local playwrights through Playwrights’ Arena, a year-long program focused on investigating artistic process and dramaturgical practice. Under the guidance of dramaturg Jocelyn Clarke, the program is providing local playwrights with individual dramaturgical support and evaluation of their personal artistic processes. The cohort includes Audrey Cefaly, Annalisa Dias, Paige Goodwin, Psalymayene 24 and Alan Sharpe. The plays and projects generated by members of the Playwrights’ Arena have been presented in theaters across the country — including Intelligence by inaugural cohort member Jacqueline E. Lawton in our 2016/17 season.

Dear Jack, Dear Louise is not my first interaction with Ken’s body of work. In fact, my friendship with Ken was formed in the Broadway sphere as a producer of Lend Me A Tenor and his musical adaptation of The Adventures of Tom Sawyer. At Arena Stage, we have had the pleasure of presenting several of Ken’s plays in the past, including Shakespeare in Hollywood and Baskerville: A Sherlock Holmes Mystery. His biting wit and ability to find grace within farce have brought him international acclaim. This piece you are about to witness is an excellent addition to his repertoire and we are honored to present the world premiere in the Kreeger.

If this is your first time experiencing Ken’s writing, you’re in for a treat.

"YOU WRITE, HE’LL FIGHT": LETTER-WRITING IN AMERICA — NOW AND THEN

by Naysan Mojgani, Literary Manager

When was the last time you wrote a letter? Not an email, not a text message, not a postcard or a bulk Christmas card with a quickly scrawled wet signature “to show a personal touch,” but an actual, physical, personal letter? If you’re like most Americans in 2019, it’s been a while. According to the U.S. Post Office, the average American household sends about four personal letters per year.

Can you blame us? In the time it takes to find paper and a pen and an envelope, I can pull out my phone, send a text message and get a reply. And I have to buy a stamp? And find a mailbox? Then there’s delivery time, of course — in the two days it takes a letter to make its way across the country, the average American will receive about 50 emails. The ubiquity of the home telephone after World War II, followed by the rise of the Internet and digital communications, made the hand-written personal letter seem archaic and inconvenient.

And yet, despite all of that, there’s no denying the very real impact of receiving a hand-written personal letter — to know that a loved one cared enough to take that time, to hold the same piece of paper that they held...Is it any wonder that throughout our history, our soldiers have been desperate for letters from home? During World War II, there were so many letters between soldiers and their families that the military introduced “V-mail,” which involved transferring letters onto microfilm and reproducing them on paper at their final destination. Even today, our military continues to write and receive far more personal letters than the average American; soldiers who don’t receive regular mail can even sign up for services that match them with civilian correspondents to create that sense of connection.

During World War II, letters were how soldiers kept up with the gossip and goings-on back home, and how they reminded themselves what they fought for. Letters were how parents and significant others knew their boys were safe, and how they learned what conditions were like on the front (within the restrictions of the military censors). Today, those very same letters are tremendously important to modern readers, they provide insight to the personal experience of historic battles and events, they help researchers understand wartime conditions and — like this play — they remind us all that the men and women we send to war are human beings.

To any veterans or current military service members reading this: thank you for your service. And enjoy the show.
Dear Jack, Dear Louise takes place from June 1, 1942 to May 8, 1945. Here are some details of American life in the early 1940s.

- FDR was elected to his third term as president in 1940, winning 54.7% of the popular vote and taking the electoral college 449-82
- The US population was 132,164,569 — less than half of what it is today
- The average annual salary was $1,900
- Before the draft lowered these numbers even further, about 25% of adults graduated high school; 10% of men and 5% of women had a four-year college degree
- The first McDonald’s opened in San Bernardino, CA, on May 15, 1940
- Before the Selective Training & Service Act was signed in 1940, about 70% of Americans were in favor of compulsory military service; by the end of the war, 49 million men had registered with their draft boards and 16 million Americans served in the military (over 10% of the total population)
- Worldwide casualties for the war are estimated at up to 85 million people; of the 80,000 military service members reported missing in action during the war, over 72,000 are still unaccounted for today
- Most professional sports continued throughout the war, despite the loss of many players to the draft; that loss was so severe that in the 1943 NFL season, the Philadelphia Eagles and Pittsburgh Steelers played as a combined team, referred to by fans as the “Steagles”
- Rationing was a daily part of life on the homefront, affecting everything from toothpaste to bacon — for instance, starting in January 1942, most civilians were barred from purchasing new tires, and could only have them repaired
- The most popular baby names in 1942 were James and Mary
- The average price of gasoline in 1940 was $0.18/gallon; milk was almost twice as expensive at $0.34/gallon
- In 1942, automotive manufacturers had to redesign their cars to do without nickel, aluminum or zinc (which were reserved for military use); after 1942, they stopped producing civilian cars entirely

WHO’S WHO

AREN STAGE LEADERSHIP

MOLLY SMITH (Artistic Director) has served as Artistic Director since 1998. Her more than 30 directing credits at Arena Stage include large-scale musicals like Anything Goes, Carousel, Fiddler on the Roof, Oklahoma!, My Fair Lady, The Music Man, Cabaret, South Pacific; new plays like Sovereignty, The Originalist, Camp David, Legacy of Light, The Women of Brewster Place, How I Learned to Drive; and classics like Mother Courage and Her Children, A Moon for the Misbegotten, The Great White Hope, and All My Sons. Her directorial work has also been seen Off-Broadway at 59E59 in New York, Portland Center Stage, Canada’s Shaw Festival, The Court Theatre, The Old Globe, Asolo Repertory, Berkeley Repertory, Trinity Repertory, Toronto’s Tarragon Theatre, Montreal’s Centaur Theatre and Perseverance Theater in Juneau, Alaska, which she founded and ran from 1979–1998. Molly has been a leader in new play development for over 40 years. She is a great believer in first, second and third productions of new work and has championed projects including Dear Evan Hansen; Next to Normal; Passion Play, a cycle; and How I Learned to Drive. She led the re-invention of Arena Stage, focusing on the architecture and creation of the Mead Center for American Theater and positioning Arena Stage as a national center for American artists through its artistic programming. During her time with the company, Arena Stage has workshoped more than 100 productions, produced 39 world premieres, staged numerous second and third productions and been an important part of nurturing nine projects that went on to have a life on Broadway. In 2014, Molly made her Broadway debut directing The Velocity of Autumn, following its critically acclaimed run at Arena Stage. She was awarded honorary doctorates from American University and Towson University. In 2018, she was honored as Person of the Year by the National Theatre Conference and inducted into the Washington DC Hall of Fame.

EDGAR DOBIE (Executive Producer) Born in Vernon, British Columbia, a village next to the Rocky Mountains (three years after Arena had its first performance in 1950), I am one of five brothers raised by my Dad Edgar, a mechanic and small businessman, and Mom Connie, a telephone operator and union organizer. I am the only Dobie to make a career in theater. Luckily for me, drama was an arts elective I was offered at the tender age of 12 so I hung up my hockey skates and joined the drama class, led by teacher Paddy Malcolm and her fledgling Powerhouse Community Theater after school. By the time I graduated from high school, we volunteers had built ourselves a 200-seat, fully equipped theater on its own piece of land in the center of town and found a sold-out audience for the full season of plays we had on offer. That experience taught me so many lessons about the power of theater to foster collaboration and share meaningful stories, as well as the public values that attach themselves to building a safe place where everyone is welcome. All those lessons served me well as a managing leader and producer both sides of the border and both sides of the commercial and non-profit theater divide. Arriving here in Southwest with my good wife Tracy and our daughter Greta Lee in 2009 makes me feel like I am well-equipped to do a good job for you all.

This theater operates under an agreement between the League of Resident Theatres and Actors’ Equity Association.

The actors and stage managers are members of Actors’ Equity Association, the Union of Professional Actors and Stage Managers in the United States.

The scenic, costume, lighting and sound designers in LORT theaters are represented by United Scenic Artists, Local USA-829 of the IATSE.

The Director and Choreographer are members of the STAGE DIRECTORS AND CHOREOGRAPHERS SOCIETY, a national theatrical labor union.

Arena Stage is a constituent of the Theatre Communications Group (TCG), the national organization for the American theater.
