A CHILDREN’S CRUSADE: THEN AND NOW

I've been thinking a lot about young people recently. I wanted to direct Newsies for a number of reasons. This musical truly has it all — an infectious score by Alan Menken, strong lyrics by Jack Feldman and an excellent book by Harvey Fierstein. It's a gold standard musical for our time. Central to me is that Newsies has a powerful message for today's young crusaders.

Newsies were anywhere from nine to 17 years old. They were total entrepreneurs. If the headlines weren’t good enough, the newsies made up the headlines. They were scrappy, some were immigrants, many lived on the streets, and they were full of passion.

The strike which this play focuses on occurred after the Spanish American War. War always sells newspapers. After the war, circulation declined and two major newspaper publishers — Joseph Pulitzer and William Randolph Hearst — decided to get more profit at the newsies’ expense. But the newsies struck back. Definitely a “David and Goliath” moment. It was a war of the ‘haves and have nots’ and we shall see who wins this particular war.

Free speech is our most valued right as Americans. We see it in the work in our theaters at Arena Stage, we ask it of the kids in our classrooms and expect it of our audiences. Theater speaks truth to power. Our work can embolden others to speak out. This whole country is awake and politically active in a way I haven’t experienced in my lifetime. Newsies is a musical that celebrates young people and their drive to stand up for what they believe in.

Think about the teenagers in Parkland, Florida creating nationwide action around gun violence who are arguing for sensible gun regulations after the massacre in their high school. These students created a March for Our Lives and a Peace Plan that outlines specific actions and legislation and pushed young people to register to vote. They moved beyond their hometown and created a national voice.

Greta Thunberg from Sweden, a 16-year-old climate warrior, started a movement by sitting outside the Swedish Parliament every day alone with a sign about our climate emergency and demanded action from the parliament. A year later, millions of students worldwide have joined her by protesting every Friday. She arrived in New York for the United Nations Summit on Climate Change on a sail boat from Sweden so she would not leave a carbon footprint. She’s fighting for the life of the planet and I applaud her.

These young people found a cause they believe in and moved into action. They have a fire in their bellies. They are fearless, they are outspoken, they are full of passion and rage, just like the newsies that populate this musical. Newsies is the same story, over a hundred years ago.

Our musical is dedicated to young people everywhere who speak up for what they believe in and take action!

Disney’s Newsies chronicles the newsboys’ strike of 1899. These children were courageous enough to make a change by standing up against newspaper tycoons, fighting for their rights and forming their own union.

As the son of a union organizer, I learned first-hand from my mother about the important role that organized labor plays in the functioning of our economy and society. The production you are about to enjoy would not have been possible without the Actors’ Equity Association, Stage Directors and Choreographers Society, American Federation of Musicians and United Scenic Artists. We are indebted to the artists represented within these unions, as they hold us accountable to our commitment to equity and excellence in all aspects of our work.

Our commitment to fair play has been integral to the success of Arena Stage since its inception. Thomas Fichandler, our founding executive director, was engaged in discussions of unionizing from an early age, evidenced by a book he co-authored in 1953—“Employment and Wages in the United States.”

Tom brought that same gift for organizing to the theater, ensuring that our artists are cared for and supported. He also saw the importance that theaters themselves band together. As a founding member of the League of Resident Theatres (LORT), Tom not only facilitated connecting resident theaters across the United States but also implemented collective bargaining for the field.

Today, LORT is the largest professional theater association of its kind in the United States, with 75 members spanning the country. By bargaining collectively with the unions representing our artists, LORT ensures a uniformity and quality of standards within its practicing theaters. This not only benefits union members, but the theaters themselves as it enables productions to more easily transition from nonprofit to commercial theaters without penalizing those involved. I welcome each of you to reflect on the instrumental work unions play in your everyday life and our society at large.

Molly, Parker, Laura and the team of fearless artists have truly created a Newsies for our time. This fall, we have watched voices across the globe speak truth to power. We heard Greta Thunberg’s impassioned plea at the United Nations Climate Action Summit, urging global leaders to address the worsening effects of climate change. Her actions established a youthful community of interest around a common cause. This production is a celebration of solidarity and a testament to the artistry of the unions represented on our stages. Your presence honors their cause.

Newsies is a story of young versus old, of capitalism and child labor, of passion and pursuing your dreams. But at its core, underneath the thrilling tap and Alan Menken’s wonderful score, Newsies is a story of labor unions.

According to a recent Gallup poll, 64% of Americans approve of unions—a 15-year high. They also find that almost 70% of Americans want unions to have at least as much influence as they currently do (39% want them to be even stronger).

And yet, nation-wide union membership is at a record low of 10.5%, according to the Bureau of Labor Statistics; this continues the trend of the last 60 years, steadily falling since the post-WWII peak of 35%. (The same time period has seen a significant decline in workers’ wages compared to productivity, and a rise in income inequality; this could be coincidental.)

In an actual coincidence, one of the few bright spots for the American labor movement in the last several years is journalism—the 21st-century descendants of the newsies are going strong. In 2015, the Washington Post published an article titled “Why Internet journalists don’t organize.” The piece became obsolete almost immediately, as Gawker Media voted to form a union under the Writers Guild of America, kicking off a wave of digital unionization, including: VICE, Salon, Huffington Post, Slate, Pitchfork, The Daily Beast, BuzzFeed, Thrillist, Refinery29 and many more. Just this summer, Vox Media saw a highly public walkout that resulted in 29 hours of negotiations and an eventual union contract.

However, this trend of unionization isn’t confined to digital journalists; unions have also gotten traction in the traditional newsrooms. The 137-year-old Los Angeles Times and 172-year-old Chicago Tribune both unionized in 2018 for the first time in their famously anti-union histories. The New Yorker, New York Magazine, The New Republic, the Hartford Courant... The list goes on.

Unions matter. In addition to the obvious benefits for the individual workers—higher wages, stronger job protection, etc.—we all benefit from a greater union presence. Research (in part by the State Department) has shown that increased union membership increases voter turnout (and not just in union members), especially among working-class voters and voters of color. These newly organized newsrooms consistently negotiate for (and receive) greater editorial independence to tell stories that need to be told.

Whether it’s keeping “papes” on the street in 1899 or maintaining the constant flow of high-quality information in 2019, the fight is the same. And we’re all in it together.

ARENA STAGE LEADERSHIP

MOLLY SMITH (Artistic Director) See bio on page 29.

EDGAR DOBIE (Executive Producer) Born in Vernon, British Columbia, a village next to the Rocky Mountains (three years after Arena had its first performance in 1950), I am one of five brothers raised by my Dad Edgar, a mechanic and small businessman, and Mom Connie, a telephone operator and union organizer. I am the only Dobie to make a career in theater. Luckily for me, drama was an arts elective I was offered at the tender age of 12 so I hung up my hockey skates and joined the drama class, led by teacher Paddy Malcolm and her fledgling Powerhouse Community Theater after school. By the time I graduated from high school, we volunteers had built ourselves a 200-seat, fully equipped theater on its own piece of land in the center of town and found a sold-out audience for the full season of plays we had on offer. That experience taught me so many lessons about the power of theater to foster collaboration and share meaningful stories, as well as the public values that attach themselves to building a safe place where everyone is welcome. All those lessons served me well as a managing leader and producer both sides of the border and both sides of the commercial and non-profit theater divide. Arriving here in Southwest with my good wife Tracy and our daughter Greta Lee in 2009 makes me feel like I am well-equipped to do a good job for you all.

THANK YOU — FULL CIRCLE SOCIETY

FULL CIRCLE SOCIETY—ARENA STAGE’S PLANNED GIVING PROGRAM

Arena Stage gratefully acknowledges these individuals who ensure the future of Arena Stage by making a planned gift. These gifts assure that Arena Stage will continue to challenge, educate and entertain audiences, and maintain its excellence in theater nationally, and internationally for generations to come. Arena can help you accomplish your personal, family and philanthropic goals while benefiting the theater. Supporters who make planned gifts to Arena are invited to join the Full Circle Society and enjoy special benefits. For more information about planned giving, please contact Maya Weil at 202-600-4158 or mweil@arenastage.org.

THANK YOU FOR LEAVING YOUR LEGACY AT ARENA STAGE

CREATE A LEGACY BY JOINING THE FULL CIRCLE SOCIETY

You don’t have to be wealthy to make a significant gift. Bequests and other planned gifts allow you the opportunity to make a significant contribution that will ensure the future of Arena Stage. The Full Circle Society allows us the opportunity to recognize you for that gift during your lifetime. For more information about making a planned gift or to inform us of your existing planned gift, please contact Maya Weil at 202-600-4158 or mweil@arenastage.org.

“We feel the long-term viability of theater really has to come from two sources — annual fundraising efforts and long-term donations [in the form of a planned gift] from the people who love the theater and are willing to commit to it in perpetuity.”

— Beth Newburger Schwartz and the late Richard Schwartz
