What could be more exciting than a new play forged in these raucous and conflicted days? The talented Aaron Posner is both writer and director of JQA as he is blessed with both skills. This performance is the culmination of years of gestation, research, imagining, drafting, re-drafting, designing, re-imagining, re-drafting, building and finally rehearsing and performing. There is probably another re-draft or two in there as well.

JQA is part of our expansive Power Plays initiative, where Arena is commissioning a new play or musical per decade from 1776 to the present about the people, ideas and incidents that revolve around power in America. There is no better city than Washington, D.C. to drive this idea because we live, sleep and drink politics. The world travels to our city to understand what it means to be American.

Washington, D.C. has a unique position as a strong voice on power and politics. We live in the fire of local, national and international politics. Local news is national news and local politics is national politics. Today’s play covers a span of time but is centered on the 1790s and the fascinating John Quincy Adams. This play is not trying to be a realistic historical drama but rather to explore the ideas and impact of America's sixth president.

The Power Plays initiative incorporates five cycles:

• Presidential Voices, illuminating exceptional Presidents and remarkable events in their lives and administrations;
• African-American Voices, heralding African-American stories in our country's history and politics;
• Insider Voices, offering an exclusive perspective on the complex workings of American institutions and culture;
• Musical Theater Voices, featuring musicals celebrating political ideas and events;
• Women's Voices, shining a spotlight on female voices in our country's political life.

We are making significant and exciting progress with our program. In addition to JQA, five have had full productions: Camp David by Lawrence Wright; The Originalist by John Strand; Intelligence by Jacqueline Lawton; Snow Child with book by John Strand, music by Georgia Stitt and Bob Banghart, lyrics by Georgia Stitt (based on the novel by Eowyn Ivey); and Sovereignty by Mary Kathryn Nagle. Keep your eyes out for more next season.

At the end of our journey, we will have created a canon of American plays that reveal an idea of who we are as Americans.

When on the brink of birthing a new play to the world like this premiere production of Aaron Posner’s \textit{JQA}, I am reminded of one of Arena’s core values: to create a work culture that reflects and borrows from the culture of the rehearsal hall which values experimentation and collaboration. In divisive times like these, it is refreshing to embrace an aspiration like that.

Not all rehearsal halls are the same and those of you who have not had the delight of being in a rehearsal hall are probably asking what this means. Even we at Arena have asked this question, to be clear to ourselves and our guests what we expect and value.

\textbf{THE PRINCIPLES OF ARENA STAGE’S CULTURE OF THE REHEARSAL HALL ENCOMPASS:}

\textbf{Responsibility}
\begin{itemize}
  \item Take responsibility for the position you hold and any amount of power you may have within this position. Do not use it abusively over others more vulnerable.
  \item Be proactive, not reactive.
  \item Lead by example.
  \item Be responsive.
\end{itemize}

\textbf{Empowerment}
\begin{itemize}
  \item Be an advocate for yourself. Call out inappropriate behavior, as appropriate.
\end{itemize}

\textbf{Mutual Respect & Courtesy}
\begin{itemize}
  \item Communication is open and civil at all levels.
  \item Understand your audience, both on and off the stage.
  \item Navigate conflict. Arena is not a conflict-free zone; however, conflict should be handled in a respectful and positive manner.
  \item Be helpful, not hurtful.
\end{itemize}

\textbf{Creativity & Collaboration}
\begin{itemize}
  \item Respect and celebrate our diverse backgrounds and experiences.
\end{itemize}

\textbf{Integrity & Accountability}
\begin{itemize}
  \item Demonstrate sound ethical principles, including honesty and integrity.
  \item Assume positive intent.
\end{itemize}

\textbf{Engagement & Pride}
\begin{itemize}
  \item Be involved and supportive of your colleagues and environment; make the investment.
  \item Encouragement of others is expected.
  \item Understand we all play an important role within our environment.
\end{itemize}

\textbf{Resiliency & Adaptation}
\begin{itemize}
  \item Honor our history and legacy, while embracing change.
\end{itemize}

Maintaining these values is not necessarily easy or simple, especially in stressful times. We recently made this into a poster and placed it around our offices, shops and backstage areas. Sometimes we all need a reminder to step back and remember we are all people, striving to do the best we can do under challenging circumstances. I have immense admiration for Arena Stage’s staff, from the sales office window, to front of house, to our shops that build, to our offices that support. A production like this one has hit every aspect of Arena; the play was commissioned through our Power Plays initiative, so it truly grew from core idea to full production with the support of all of our organization, working hard at honoring the culture of the rehearsal hall!

John Quincy Adams is a unique and quintessentially American figure. He was (in no particular order) a politician, poet, diarist, diplomat, author, essayist, translator, lawyer, linguist, rhetorician, scientist and (almost) an activist. He was also, by most accounts, a dry, difficult, truly brilliant, rather charmless civil servant and deeply flawed family man. While certainly subject to the prejudices and attitudes of his time, I believe he was a man of true integrity.

I chose to write about John Quincy Adams for several reasons. I won't tell you all of them, so as not to spoil the play for you. But some are: He is not very well known. He is complicated and contradictory. He is nearly impossible, by today's standards, to categorize as a liberal or conservative, which I found very intriguing. While he belonged to several political parties during his long career, he was suspicious of parties and held a true allegiance only to the idea of the United States and its citizens (which you have to sort of love about him...). In my subjective (even whimsical) reading of his life, he evolved and changed in fascinating ways over the course of an extraordinary political career that covered the first half of the 19th century.

But let me be very clear: While this play is inspired by history, and the characters are in keeping with the traits and beliefs of their real-life counterparts, this play is NOT historically accurate. The language is fanciful and nearly entirely my own. The meetings and conversations it proposes are fictitious. If you go looking for facts, while you will certainly find some similarities to real people and real events, this play is not to be trusted as accurate in any way!

The goal here has always been provocation, not excavation; entertainment, not edification. This is a work of art—not history. Knowledge of John Quincy Adams and his influence on early American history is not necessary to understanding this play, because it is not really about history in the first place. Rather, it is an attempt to look at today through the lens of yesteryear.

On a personal note, I would like to thank the many, many people who have contributed to the evolution of the play over several years. In particular I would like to express my deep and lasting gratitude to Molly Smith, Edgar Dobie and the board and staff of Arena Stage for this extraordinary opportunity; to E.J. Dionne for the initial inspiration; to Jocelyn Clarke and Erin Weaver, for their transformative insights; to George Bernard Shaw and Aaron Sorkin, who taught me to love theatrical political passion; to Naysan, Anna’le, Dalia and the cast and designers on this production; and all of the other artists who were part of the readings and workshops (including the wonderful students at American University who were part of an initial workshop production) for all their many ineffable, innumerable and invaluable contributions.

Molly has been a leader in new play development for over 40 years. She is a great believer in first, second and third productions of new work and has championed projects including How I Learned to Drive; Passion Play, a cycle; Next to Normal; and Dear Evan Hansen.

She led the re-invention of Arena Stage, focusing on the architecture and creation of the Mead Center for American Theater and positioning Arena Stage as a national center for American artists. During her time with the company, Arena Stage has workshopped more than 100 productions, produced 39 world premieres, staged numerous second and third productions and been an important part of nurturing nine projects that went on to have a life on Broadway. In 2014, Molly made her Broadway debut directing The Velocity of Autumn, following its critically acclaimed run at Arena Stage. She was awarded honorary doctorates from American University and Towson University. In 2018, she was honored as Person of the Year by the National Theatre Conference and inducted into the Washington D.C. Hall of Fame.

EDGAR DOBIE (Executive Producer) Born in Vernon, British Columbia, a village next to the Rocky Mountains (three years after Arena had its first performance in 1950), I am one of five brothers raised by my Dad—Edgar, a mechanic and small businessman—and Mom—Connie, a telephone operator and union organizer. I am the only Dobie to make a career in theater. Luckily for me, drama was an arts elective I was offered at the tender age of 12, so I hung up my hockey skates and joined the drama class, led by teacher Paddy Malcolm and her fledgling Powerhouse Community Theater after school. By the time I graduated from high school, we volunteers had built ourselves a 200-seat fully-equipped theater on its own piece of land in the center of town and found a sell-out audience for the full season of plays we had to offer. That experience taught me so many lessons about the power of theater to foster collaboration and share meaningful stories, as well as the public values that attach themselves to building a safe place where everyone is welcome. All those lessons served me well as a managing leader and producer both sides of the border, and both sides of the commercial and non-profit theater divide. Arriving here at Arena in 2009 makes me feel like I am well-equipped for the best job in the world.

This theater operates under an agreement between the League of Resident Theatres and Actors’ Equity Association.

The actors and stage managers are members of Actors’ Equity Association, the Union of Professional Actors and Stage Managers in the United States.

The scenic, costume, lighting and sound designers in LORT theaters are represented by United Scenic Artists, Local USA-829 of the IATSE.

The Director and Choreographer are members of the STAGE DIRECTORS AND CHOREOGRAPHERS SOCIETY, a national theatrical labor union.

Arena Stage is a constituent of the Theatre Communications Group (TCG), the national organization for the American theater.

THANK YOU FOR LEAVING YOUR LEGACY AT ARENA STAGE

CREATE A LEGACY BY JOINING THE FULL CIRCLE SOCIETY

You don’t have to be wealthy to make a significant gift. Bequests and other planned gifts allow you the opportunity to make a significant contribution that will ensure the future of Arena Stage. The Full Circle Society allows us the opportunity to recognize you for that gift during your lifetime. For more information about making a planned gift or to inform us of your existing planned gift, please contact Holly Oliver at 202-600-4029 or holiver@arenastage.org.

“We feel the long-term viability of theater really has to come from two sources—annual fundraising efforts and long-term donations [in the form of a planned gift] from the people who love the theater and are willing to commit to it in perpetuity.”

— Beth Newburger Schwartz and the late Richard Schwartz
