I have always loved LBJ.

President Johnson had brashness, strength and the ability to talk anyone into anything. There’s a reason his biography is titled The Master of the Senate. I think he was one of the greatest presidents in my lifetime. From his signature War on Poverty program to championing the Civil Rights Act, he was a bold visionary who got things done. At this moment of history, it’s a joy to reflect on his ability to get results — through charm, intelligence and lots of arm twisting. What can I say, I’m from Alaska and I like big personalities.

I first saw All the Way three years ago at the Oregon Shakespeare Festival and I was riveted. This work chronicles a significant chapter of our history: the transitional period after President Kennedy’s assassination and the fluctuating power dynamic between the people and the government. I’m particularly excited to have Jack Willis reprise his role as President Johnson. He is the perfect, towering figure to play LBJ, a role he created for both All the Way and The Great Society (Robert Schenkkan’s sequel covering the later years of LBJ’s presidency) in their premieres at OSF. Guided by the sophisticated hand of director Kyle Donnelly, Jack will bring this pivotal period in America to life, along with an exceptional cast and design team.

All the Way is a terrific story for the Washington audience. We live and breathe politics in D.C. We wake up in the morning to The Washington Post and The New York Times. We listen to NPR during the morning commute. We argue about the primaries over dinner every evening. In the midst of an intense presidential election, it seems as though the issues raised in this play are as relevant today as they were in the 1960s.

All the Way is this year’s second production to come from OSF. Earlier this season we partnered on the co-commission of Sweat, a brilliant new work by Lynn Nottage which recently won the Susan Smith Blackburn Prize. Political work and a strong relationship to our community are passionate values at both of our theaters. I look forward to working with our friends at OSF again next season, when we will co-produce the world premiere of Roe by Lisa Loomer, a powerful play about one of the most influential Supreme Court cases of our time.

I can only imagine the discussions in the lobby during this production. Enjoy the show.

All best,

Molly Smith, Artistic Director
You may be wondering how celebrated plays like All the Way get developed? They don’t always start with the Oval Office, but they almost always begin with a big idea.

Arena has a meaningful partnership with Oregon Shakespeare Festival (OSF). As sister resident theaters, we pride ourselves on our commitment to new work. All the Way makes its D.C. debut after premiering at OSF as part of their commissioning program, American Revolutions: The United States History Cycle. Big ideas and legacy plays need time; and both Arena and OSF have found the resources to create, develop and cultivate powerful stories for the stage.

At Arena, we also understand that significant initiatives require investment. That is why we host resident playwrights, the American Voices New Play Institute (AVNPI) and commission new works. AVNPI was launched in 2009 and endures. It has focused its energies around the Institute residencies and the creation of new development opportunities for writers locally and nationally through the Playwrights’ Arena and Kogod Cradle Series, in addition to supporting our commissioned writers and all ongoing new play development efforts. Lydia R. Diamond, Amy Freed, Katori Hall, Samuel D. Hunter, Lisa Kron, Charles Randolph-Wright, John Strand and Karen Zacarías have all been resident playwrights. David Henry Hwang and Lynn Nottage hold project residences with Arena, and some of our current commissioned playwrights include Mary Kathryn Nagle, Aaron Posner and Cheryl L. West.

You have seen some of these commissioned world premieres come alive on our stages over the years with Camp David by Lawrence Wright and The Originalist by John Strand; earlier this season with Destiny of Desire by Karen Zacarías; and next season brings Intelligence by Jacqueline E. Lawton.

Sometimes a play takes one year from an idea to opening night; sometimes it takes ten years. Arena’s enduring instinct is to commission new, powerful plays and raise them in a supportive environment. We are encouraged to present their plays (whether from our own or others’ development programs) by the welcome embrace of our Arena audience who understands the value of new work being a vital part of our season.

Look at all the great stories ahead of us!

Thanks for reading!

The Shakespearean size and scope of Robert Schenkkan’s All the Way is equal to the men and women involved in the events surrounding the Civil Rights Act and the Presidential election of 1964. With the tragic events of November 22, 1963, Lyndon Baines Johnson was catapulted into the presidency and accomplished some of the 20th century’s greatest legislation, beginning with the Civil Rights Act of 1964. Shortly before rehearsals began, I had the great pleasure of sitting down with Robert Schenkkan to discuss the inspiration and process of All the Way. Below is an excerpt of our conversation.

What attracted you to Lyndon Baines Johnson and how did the idea for All the Way and The Great Society originate and develop?

I grew up in Austin, Texas, the Hill Country, only 40 or 60 miles from LBJ’s birthplace, and what would become his ranch, the western White House. There are family stories of a visit to the ranch. There’s one story where our station wagon got bogged down in the mud and Senator Johnson came out in his own truck and helped put his shoulder to the fender. I don’t remember any of this, but it’s a great story. The ’64 election, the Johnson/Goldwater election, which is covered in the play, is the first election I participated in. I was 11 years old and I wore my button and my stickers on my school books, and my mother and I went down to the headquarters on Congress Avenue and stuffed envelopes, and I got to stay up late and watch the returns. I have a very vivid memory of that, of the success. He’s always been in my head. There’s always been this idea that I would write about him at some point. When Oregon Shakespeare Festival commissioned me for their American Revolutions project, I quickly settled on “the accidental President,” his first term. It lays out so beautifully; the coming in at this moment of crisis and tragedy after being in the wilderness politically.

Was there a moment in time when you realized that something unique was happening?

When we opened in Ashland and heard the response of the audience, we thought, “Well this works, this is very good.” Jack Willis originated the part of LBJ. D.C. audiences are extremely fortunate to be able to see his performance. He’s fantastic. It was a very, very powerful experience.

I do think – because of the debacle of Iraq, which made people think a lot about Vietnam, and the election of Barack Obama, the first African-American President — the play highlights the question of how much progress have we really made, in this country, especially in terms of race relations. It became a real attractor for politicians from both sides of the aisle. I think people felt like this is an accurate depiction of the challenges of trying to pass legislation. It’s tough, messy work, what Bismarck called “the sausage making of politics.” It’s not pretty but it’s too important to leave to other people. Everybody has to be involved.

ARENA STAGE LEADERSHIP

MOLLY SMITH (Artistic Director) has served as Artistic Director of Arena Stage since 1998. Her directing credits include Oliver!, The Originalist, Fiddler on the Roof, Camp David, Mother Courage and Her Children, Oklahoma!, A Moon for the Misbegotten, My Fair Lady, The Great White Hope, The Music Man, Orpheus Descending, Legacy of Light, The Women of Brewster Place, Cabaret, An American Daughter, South Pacific, Agamemnon and His Daughters, Coyote Builds North America, All My Sons and How I Learned to Drive at Arena Stage. Her directorial work has also been seen at the Shaw Festival in Canada, Berkeley Repertory Theatre, Trinity Repertory Company, Tarragon Theatre in Toronto, Centaur Theatre in Montreal and Perseverance Theater in Juneau, Alaska, which she founded and ran from 1979-1998. Molly has been a leader in new play development for over 30 years. She is a great believer in first, second and third productions of new work and has championed projects like How I Learned to Drive; Passion Play, a cycle and Next to Normal. She has worked alongside playwrights Sarah Ruhl, Paula Vogel, Wendy Wasserstein, Lawrence Wright, Karen Zacarías, John Murrell, Eric Coble, Charles Randolph-Wright and many others. She led the re-invention of Arena Stage, focusing on the architecture and creation of the Mead Center for American Theater and by positioning Arena Stage as a national center for American artists. During her time with the company, Arena Stage has workshopped more than 100 productions, produced 29 world premieres, staged numerous second and third productions and been an important part of nurturing seven projects that went on to have a life on Broadway. In 2014, Molly made her Broadway debut directing The Velocity of Autumn, following its critically acclaimed run at Arena Stage. She was awarded honorary doctorates from American University and Towson University.

EDGAR DOBIE (Executive Producer) After nearly four decades, Edgar continues to enjoy a career in public theater. He has served as executive director of Trinity Repertory Company in Providence, founding managing director of Toronto’s Canadian Stage Company and managing director at National Arts Centre in Ottawa and Vancouver’s New Play Centre. Based in New York City for six years, he was president of Andrew Lloyd Webber’s Really Useful Company and the North American executive producer of Riverdream, as well as managing producer of the Tony Awards. His Broadway producing credits include Sunset Boulevard (Tony Award for Best Musical), Joseph and the Amazing Technicolor Dreamcoat, Paul Simon’s The Capeman, The Adventures of Tom Sawyer, Boublil and Schönberg’s The Pirate Queen and Dolly Parton's 9 to 5. He is a member of the Directors for theatreWashington and the Southwest Business Improvement District. Edgar, his good wife Tracy and their daughter Greta Lee are all proud residents of Southwest Washington, D.C.

This theater operates under an agreement between the League of Resident Theatres and Actors’ Equity Association.

The actors and stage managers are members of Actors’ Equity Association, the Union of Professional Actors and Stage Managers in the United States.

The scenic, costume, lighting and sound designers in LORT theaters are represented by United Scenic Artists, Local USA-829 of the IATSE.

The Director and Choreographer are members of the STAGE DIRECTORS AND CHOREOGRAPHERS SOCIETY, a national theatrical labor union.

Arena Stage is a constituent of the Theatre Communications Group (TCG), the national organization for the American theater.

FULL CIRCLE SOCIETY - ARENA STAGE'S PLANNED GIVING PROGRAM

Arena Stage gratefully acknowledges these individuals who ensure the future of Arena Stage by making a planned gift. These gifts assure that Arena Stage will continue to challenge, educate and entertain audiences, and maintain its excellence in theater nationally, and internationally for generations to come.

Arena can help you accomplish your personal, family and philanthropic goals while benefiting the theater. Supporters who make planned gifts to Arena are invited to join the Full Circle Society and enjoy special benefits.

For more information on the Full Circle Society, we invite you to contact Holly Oliver at 202-600-4029 or holiver@arenastage.org.

Thank you for leaving your legacy at Arena Stage
