I have just come back from a rejuvenating visit to our cabin in Alaska, and I’m excited to continue this season with Karen Zacarias’ Native Gardens after John Strand’s The Originalist. In Alaska we literally share a back yard with bears (yes, grizzly bears, the big brown ones) and I witnessed them fishing for spawning salmon, greedily mowing down bushes of blueberries and eating sedge grass.

But that was nature…not our country. The events of the last few weeks have been horrifying to watch and hear. Our country is continuously examining what it means to be American and the values that are important to our country and our families. How we advocate for these values says a lot about us individually and collectively.

Although Native Gardens has a narrower focus, our relationships with our neighbors feel the strain of many stresses. These relationships may bring out the territorial grizzly in each of us, exposing parts of ourselves we don’t like or parts of ourselves that we do. Karen’s genius as a playwright is showing us real people with honest reactions to daily life. Who hasn’t complained about the way a neighbor keeps the lawn or cleans their back yard? What happens when it’s not just about the yard, and ultimately about how we view each other?

Karen and I first worked together on an Arena show in 2009 with Legacy of Light. While we knew each other as artists, our first collaboration was her beautiful play Arena commissioned about science, the stars and the heavens from a scientific female perspective. When I think about the many artists I’ve collaborated with over these 20 years, Karen is definitely a stand-out. She’s clever and smart. She writes plays about real people—and she writes about women. She’s an important voice for our time, and a special friend for me.

The whole country is awake and politically active in a way I haven’t experienced in my lifetime, making this the most exciting time to be producing plays. Arena is a theater that welcomes people from every walk of life and all political leanings. Theater involves a search for truth, not the hiding of it; a critique of power, not the exercise of it; an invitation to conversation and insight, not a shutting down of dialogue.

We are sharing this production with our friends in Minneapolis at the Guthrie Theater. It’s a pleasure to work with artistic director Joe Haj and talented artists from a sister theater. This is also a collaboration with director Blake Robison, formerly of Round House Theatre and now artistic director at Cincinnati Playhouse. Blake and Karen’s work together is incisive—and funny.

At Arena Stage, we commit to making art more powerfully and more provocatively than ever before. The arts have always been on the front line of fight against fear. You, our audience, drive us forward with the roars we hear each night, the provocative discussions in the lobby, the soul-searching questions.

We go to the theater to be entertained and even to escape, but the theater also makes sense of the world, especially in times of unrest and chaos. We go to our writers for an inside and outside view. It’s truly wonderful to launch Karen’s play, set in D.C.—which just might bring out the bear in each of us.

All Best,

Molly Smith, Artistic Director
We are faced with big questions almost every day these days. In leading any organization, it is important to have a clear VISION, MISSION and a strongly held set of CORE VALUES to guide—in our case—a resident theater. Although available elsewhere in our communications, I want to restate these guiding principles:

VISION: Arena Stage’s vision is to galvanize the transformative power of theater to understand who we are as Americans.

MISSION STATEMENT: Arena Stage is alive as a center for American Theater in our nation’s capital with productions, diverse and innovative works from around the country and the nurturing of new plays. Our focus is on American artists. We produce and present all that is passionate, exuberant, profound, deep and dangerous in the American spirit. We explore issues from the past, present and future that reflect America’s diversity and challenges. These are voiced through the productions we create, the work we develop, the presentations that move beyond our stages, and community and education programs that engage artists, students and audiences.

CORE VALUES:

- Create a work culture that reflects and borrows from the culture of the rehearsal hall which values experimentation and collaboration
- Pursue excellence in all aspects of our endeavor
- Flourish by building a healthy, dynamic and powerful artistic community
- Create and steward financial resources to enable a vital Arena Stage
- Champion diversity throughout the organization and within the community
- Strive to instill in the public life long love and participation in the theater arts
- Serve artists; the national, regional, and local communities; and theater through effective partnerships and collaboration at the most sophisticated and professional levels
- Cultivate an engaged, diverse, and responsive board, staff, audience and community

Over the course of the season in my program notes I will focus on one or two of our core values to illustrate how we live our values and apply them to the decisions we make. Any feedback you may have is most welcome. My contact information is below my signature.

I could not be happier than I am at our decision to open this new season with Karen Zacarías’ play. It rings all our core value bells!

Hope you enjoy the season!

Warmly,

Edgar Dobie, Executive Director

MOLLY SMITH’S 20TH

CELEBRATING 20 YEARS
AS ARENA STAGE’S
ARTISTIC DIRECTOR

Arena Stage’s 2017/18 season marks the 20th anniversary season of Molly Smith as Artistic Director. Her appointment as the third artistic director in Arena’s history was announced on December 4, 1997 and met with great enthusiasm. Riley Temple, past president of Arena Stage’s Board of Trustees and the chair of the search committee commented, “We’re thrilled at the notion of having Molly Smith as Artistic Director. She is absolutely the type of leader that Arena needs to take it into the next century.” Molly was equally excited stating, “I am thrilled to become part of this history.” Prior to Arena, she founded Perseverance Theatre in Alaska and had served as its Artistic Director for 19 years. Arena, under her leadership, has focused on the diverse work of the Americas and American writers. “There is no theater in America that is dedicated to American writers,” stated Molly. “Why do we go to Washington? We go to learn what the American mind is: the ideas, drives and passions that make us American.”

During her time at Arena, Molly Smith has directed more than 30 productions, workshopped over 100, produced 39 world premieres, staged numerous second and third productions and been an important part of nurturing nine projects that went on to have a life on Broadway, including 2017 Tony Award winning musical, Dear Evan Hansen. Additionally Sweat (2017) and Next to Normal (2010) were recipients of the Pulitzer Prize for Drama. In 2014, Molly made her Broadway debut directing The Velocity of Autumn, following its critically acclaimed run at Arena Stage.

PLAYWRIGHT’S NOTE

What inspired the play’s premise? It’s sounds hilarious – and insightful.
It was party small-talk that inspired the idea for Native Gardens. My friends were talking about a strange altercation that had happened with a neighbor and other people started bringing up their crazy neighbor stories and it struck me that these small, intense fights have many of the ingredients for the bigger battles happening in the world today. There is something both primal and absurd at the root of all these conflicts.

You’re tackling race and privilege in the play – which are obviously not unique to D.C., but why did you set the play in Washington, and what is it about our city, its neighborhoods and people that make it a rich story for telling this type of story?
I’ve always wanted to set a raucous comedy in our unique backyard of Washington D.C. Comedy is disarming; it can shed light on our personal foibles and allows us to examine “thorny” subjects without getting defensive. We are a city that does serious important work ... but sometimes that translates into residents feeling self-important. Being reminded to laugh at ourselves is fun, humbling, and vital; I think it is a sign of self-awareness and a remedy for intractability. It’s healthy to laugh and relax. Really.

Do fences really make the best neighbors? Or is it something else entirely?
What makes a good neighbor? I would say thoughtful consideration and good communication probably do a lot more for neighborly relations...and a fence may or may not be a part of it. Also, bringing over wine and cookies never hurts.

What do you hope audience members will take away from this play?
First, I hope people laugh and have a rollicking great time. It's really exciting to see how vested and verbal the audience becomes. And then I hope the discussion goes all over the map—from mosquitos, mulch, and gardening to immigration, class, and privilege. I would love the audience to discuss the idea of what is an American in this day and age in the United States. And to enter of discussion of how we can live respectfully alongside each other ... especially in this political climate.

The back of two houses. Two back gardens. A wire fence with ivy divides them. One garden is a beautiful garden with lush grass and very symmetrical garden beds. The other is unkempt: dying peonies ... straggly rose bushes, grass, a large oak tree, leaves and acorns.

Molly has been a leader in new play development for over 30 years. She is a great believer in first, second and third productions of new work and has championed projects including How I Learned to Drive; Passion Play, a cycle; Next to Normal; and Dear Evan Hansen. She has worked alongside playwrights Sarah Ruhl, Paula Vogel, Wendy Wasserstein, Lawrence Wright, Karen Zacarías, John Murrell, Eric Coble, Charles Randolph-Wright and many others. She led the re-invention of Arena Stage, focusing on the architecture and creation of the Mead Center for American Theater and positioning Arena Stage as a national center for American artists. During her time with the company, Arena Stage has workshopped more than 100 productions, produced 39 world premieres, staged numerous second and third productions and been an important part of nurturing nine projects that went on to have a life on Broadway. In 2014, Molly made her Broadway debut directing The Velocity of Autumn, following its critically acclaimed run at Arena Stage. She was awarded honorary doctorates from American University and Towson University.

EDGAR DOBIE (Executive Director) Born in Vernon, British Columbia, a village next to the Rocky Mountains (three years before Arena had its first performance in 1950), I am one of five brothers raised by my Dad — Edgar, a mechanic and small businessman — and Mom — Connie, a telephone operator and union organizer. I am the only Dobie to make a career in theater. Luckily for me, drama was an arts elective I was offered at the tender age of 12, so I hung up my hockey skates and joined the drama class, led by teacher Paddy Malcolm and her fledgling Powerhouse Community Theater after school. By the time I graduated from high school, we volunteers had built ourselves a 200 seat fully-equipped theater on its own piece of land in the center of town and found a sell-out audience for the full season of plays we had to offer. That experience taught me so many lessons about the power of theater to foster collaboration and share meaningful stories, as well as the public values that attach themselves to building a safe place where everyone is welcome. All those lessons served me well as a managing leader and producer both sides of the border, and both sides of the commercial and non-profit theater divide. Arriving here at Arena in 2009 makes me feel like I am well-equipped for the best job in the world.

This theater operates under an agreement between the League of Resident Theatres and Actors’ Equity Association.

THANK YOU FOR LEAVING YOUR LEGACY AT ARENA STAGE

CREATE A LEGACY BY JOINING THE FULL CIRCLE SOCIETY

You don't have to be wealthy to make a significant gift. Bequests and other planned gifts allow you the opportunity to make a significant contribution that will ensure the future of Arena Stage. The Full Circle Society allows us the opportunity to recognize you for that gift during your lifetime. For more information about making a planned gift or to inform us of your existing planned gift, please contact Holly Oliver at 202-600-4029 or holiver@arenastage.org.

“We feel the long-term viability of theater really has to come from two sources—annual fundraising efforts and long-term donations [in the form of a planned gift] from the people who love the theater and are willing to commit to it in perpetuity.”

—Beth Newburger Schwartz and the late Richard Schwartz
