When looking at the true giants of the theater, there are very few American playwrights more important than Arthur Miller. Arena Stage has a long history of producing Arthur Miller’s work, dating back to 1954 with the opening of All My Sons during Arena’s fourth season. Since that initial production in 1954, Arena has produced nearly 15 productions of Miller’s work, including the first full-length production of A View from the Bridge in 1956. I had the pleasure of directing All My Sons in May of 2001, and Arena celebrated the work of Arthur Miller in the “Giants Festival” during the 2007/08 season, which featured Death of A Salesman and A View from the Bridge in rotating rep, as well as additional readings, film screenings and lectures focused on his robust body of work.

Tonight, you have the great pleasure of seeing Seema Sueko’s staging of The Price. Last season, Seema staged an energetic and artful production of Smart People — I can’t wait for you to see how she tackles this American classic about families, loss and the dividing of the estate. The cast is led by the incomparable Hal Linden alongside Maboud Ebrahimzadeh, Ricardo Frederick Evans, Pearl Sun and Rafael Untalan. The design team includes Arena cornerstone Allen Lee Hughes (Lighting) with Ivania Stack (Costumes), Roc Lee (Sound) and Wilson Chin (Sets), who makes his Arena Stage design debut with this production. Together they have transformed the Kogod Cradle into the cluttered New York City attic of the Franz family and the final reckoning of past injuries.

My mother of almost 96 years recently died, and my sister and I have just gathered with friends and relatives for her funeral to mourn and celebrate her life, and to go through her furniture and personal items. Furniture and clothing take on a life of their own when a loved one passes. What could be more personal and powerful than connecting the people you love with what they’ve left behind?

We hope you will join us for our other offerings this season. From the politically charged story of Nina Simone in Christina Ham’s Nina Simone: Four Women to the premiere of our newest Power Play Sovereignty, our dynamic programming promises vigorous and heartfelt discussions about life.

Where else but Arena Stage can you be engaged, moved and charged by the intensity of life?

See you at Arena,

Molly Smith, Artistic Director
The success of Arena Stage as a nonprofit arts organization relies in part on its commitment to its core values. In my program notes this season, I aim to highlight those core values and demonstrate how we live our values and apply them to the decisions we make as an organization. What better way to start off than our first core value:

Create a work culture that reflects and borrows from the culture of the rehearsal hall which values experimentation and collaboration

First, what is the culture of the rehearsal hall? For me, the rehearsal hall signifies the thrill of possibility and approaching matters from each and every angle. It is trusting the vision of the director, and transforming together so that our actors ultimately have the confidence they need to tell the story.

As in the rehearsal hall, Arena Stage’s work culture has been defined by taking risks. We accept the ability to fail, knowing that we are surrounded by colleagues who will encourage and support us. Much like a production evolving from first rehearsal to opening night, it is our duty to ensure that the ideas shared in our internal meetings and discussions come into fruition to help better serve our organization.

As the past year has shown, Arena Stage is open to new ways of doing business and taking on things that are unfamiliar. Earlier this summer, we ventured outside the comfort zone of the subscription model, pursuing summer programming by bringing back The Originalist, using the previous successes of Born For This, John Grisham’s A Time to Kill and, of course, Dear Evan Hansen as models. Additionally, our leadership demonstrated the courage to re-examine our own performance, opening our board structure up to evaluation and taking a closer look at how we govern ourselves. Following our trustees completing a board satisfaction survey and engaging in several meaningful conversations at our annual Board Retreat, we chose to eliminate our Communications and Community Engagement committees and introduced Strategy and Governance committees. As an institution, Arena Stage will need to embrace the generative thinking of the rehearsal hall to face the challenges of being a nonprofit theater company in the twenty-first century.

We hope that the work done inside our rehearsal room is evident not only on our stages, but on the success of our organization as a whole.

Thanks for reading,

Edgar Dobie, Executive Director

MOLLY SMITH’S 20TH

“I COME FROM ALASKA…”

So began a slide presentation that Molly Smith shared nationally, including at a Theatre Communications Group national conference, putting her and her theater in Juneau — Perseverance Theatre — on the American theater map.

Molly Smith was born in Yakima, Washington, the daughter of Catherine Mullins and Bernard Smith. Sadly, Bernard, a clinical psychologist, passed away shortly before she was born. Her mother Kay — a social worker and adoption specialist — raised Molly and her sister Bridget with tenacity and verve as a single mother. Molly remembers clearly her first childhood theater experience, a touring production of Camelot starring Robert Goulet: “I can remember everything ... the red seat I sat in, the section of the balcony where my seat was, the light emanating from the stage and my own body leaning in. I was hooked.”

With her mother’s strong example, Molly was creative, independent and tenacious. In elementary school, she got into trouble for wearing home the ‘reading crown’ as best reader in first grade after making her own crown to be rewarded with ice cream as many nights as possible. At age 11 she started a “dial-a-dinner” service, selling meals for delivery over the phone. When people began calling for meals from the ad in the paper, her shocked mother even took a moment to consider whether she’d join Molly in this entrepreneurial idea.

When Molly was 16, Kay moved the family to Alaska “for money and adventure.” After finishing high school, Molly attended the University of Fairbanks (on a pre-law track!) for a year and traveled to Europe, back-packing for three months, where she decided to start a theater in Juneau — she was just 19. She then transferred to Catholic University to follow her passion for theater. Both her parents and her sister attended...
Catholic University, and her grandfather graduated from Georgetown — as a Western family, it was always important to finish school in the East. She earned her master’s degree from American University, but Molly believes her most important learning was in the small professional theaters of D.C.

During her time in college, Molly made important artistic friends, such as playwright Paula Vogel and Studio Theatre founder Joy Zinoman. She worked as a drama therapist at St. Elizabeth's Hospital, at theaters including New Playwrights’, ASTA, the Washington Area Feminist Theatre and the West End. She was inspired by visionaries like Arena’s Zelda Fichandler, as well as artistic risk takers such as the Performance Garage, the Ridiculous Theatre and Mabou Mines. In 1978, Molly packed 50 used theater seats — along with her vision and determination — and headed back home to start her theater company in Juneau. She led Perseverance Theatre through 19 years of mainstage productions, educational and outreach programs, tours and festivals. They toured around the state and internationally over 70 times during her tenure, from Nome, Alaska to Athens, Greece. Perseverance thrives today and will partner with Arena later this season on the premiere of the new musical Snow Child.

When Molly arrived at Arena Stage 20 years ago, she said “As I thought about the possibility of becoming artistic director for Arena, I sat and looked for many hours meditating on the snow-covered mountains which surround Juneau and asked myself what the next phase of my life would be. This is a homecoming for me in the most beautiful sense of the word. I come to you today with the same sense of adventure.”

Molly’s anniversary program pages are joyously sponsored by Andrew R. Ammerman.

You two have worked together before.

SEEMA SUEKO: Hal played Henry in my production of The Fantasticks last year at The Pasadena Playhouse.

HAL LINDEN: This is the second show we’ve done together where I enter up a trap. Next show we do, Seema, you gotta let me enter from one of the wings!

SS: It’s a deal, Hal!

Hal, what excites you about working at Arena Stage?

HL: I have never worked at Arena Stage before, which is interesting because I kind of started becoming an actor in the D.C. area, a long, long time ago. I’ve known Arena Stage and saw many of my friends cut their teeth here. It’s always been in the back of my mind — one of these days. And one of these days is here.

Seema, what is The Price about?

SS: It’s about fighting to heal. I have a friend who grew up in a household where they didn’t tell each other they loved one another. He grew up suppressing all his feelings. Recently, in his 40s, he began going to therapy, examining his past, and recognizing that he has all these wounds from his childhood. He’s now learning how to feel his emotions and let them out. When he cried in front of me, it was strange. These cries came out like spurts of vomit, dry heaves. I couldn’t tell if he was laughing or crying. But what I did know was that he was healing. And that’s why The Price is necessary today. Though it’s set in 1968, the need to heal is eternal. We are all wounded, whether that’s personally from moments in our childhood, or nationally as a divided country. None of us can move forward in our lives until we peel the scabs off, wade through the muck, hold a mirror up to the narratives we’ve invented, and then finally take responsibility for our choices and forgive ourselves and those who wounded us. The play is bookended with the sound of the Laughing Record — a popular recording made in the 1920s of a woman laughing over the sound of a melancholy trumpet. She is joined by a man laughing. This record made people laugh. As I think back to my friend whose cries sounded like laughter. I wonder is this laughter at the end of the play? Is it crying? And really it doesn’t matter because it is healing.

Hal, you play Gregory Solomon. Tell us about him.

HL: Gregory Solomon is a very old used-furniture dealer, who has lived through some of the most horrific and wonderful times in history. This is 1968 and he is 89 years old. He’s lived through the World Wars, the Depression … and has survived all of it. He is a survivor. He’s in the play just to give “the price.” He gives the price of the furniture that they are trying to sell and, metaphorically, the price we all pay for the decisions that we make in our lives.

Her more than 30 directing credits at Arena Stage include Carousel, Oliver!, The Originalist, Fiddler on the Roof, Camp David, Mother Courage and Her Children, Oklahoma!, A Moon for the Misbegotten, My Fair Lady, The Great White Hope, The Music Man, Orpheus Descending, Legacy of Light, The Women of Brewster Place, Cabaret, South Pacific, Agamemnon and His Daughters, All My Sons and How I Learned to Drive. She most recently directed Our Town at Canada’s Shaw Festival. Her directorial work has also been seen at The Old Globe, Asolo Repertory, Berkeley Repertory, Trinity Repertory, Toronto’s Tarragon Theatre, Montreal’s Centaur Theatre and Perseverance Theater in Juneau, Alaska, which she founded and ran from 1979–1998. Molly has been a leader in new play development for over 30 years. She is a great believer in first, second and third productions of new work and has championed projects including How I Learned to Drive; Passion Play, a cycle; Next to Normal; and Dear Evan Hansen. She has worked alongside playwrights Sarah Ruhl, Paula Vogel, Wendy Wasserstein, Lawrence Wright, Karen Zacarías, John Murrell, Eric Coble, Charles Randolph-Wright and many others. She led the re-invention of Arena Stage, focusing on the architecture and creation of the Mead Center for American Theater and positioning Arena Stage as a national center for American artists. During her time with the company, Arena Stage has workshops more than 100 productions, produced 39 world premieres, staged numerous second and third productions and been an important part of nurturing nine projects that went on to have a life on Broadway. In 2014, Molly made her Broadway debut directing The Velocity of Autumn, following its critically acclaimed run at Arena Stage. She was awarded honorary doctorates from American University and Towson University.

EDGAR DOBIE (Executive Director) Born in Vernon, British Columbia, a village next to the Rocky Mountains (three years before Arena had its first performance in 1950), I am one of five brothers raised by my Dad — Edgar, a mechanic and small businessman — and Mom — Connie, a telephone operator and union organizer. I am the only Dobie to make a career in theater. Luckily for me, drama was an arts elective I was offered at the tender age of 12, so I hung up my hockey skates and joined the drama class, led by teacher Paddy Malcolm and her fledgling Powerhouse Community Theater after school. By the time I graduated from high school, we volunteers had built ourselves a 200 seat fully-equipped theater on its own piece of land in the center of town and found a sell-out audience for the full season of plays we had to offer. That experience taught me so many lessons about the power of theater to foster collaboration and share meaningful stories, as well as the public values that attach themselves to building a safe place where everyone is welcome. All those lessons served me well as a managing leader and producer both sides of the border, and both sides of the commercial and non-profit theater divide. Arriving here at Arena in 2009 makes me feel like I am well-equipped for the best job in the world.

This theater operates under an agreement between the League of Resident Theatres and Actors’ Equity Association.

The actors and stage managers are members of Actors’ Equity Association, the Union of Professional Actors and Stage Managers in the United States.

The scenic, costume, lighting and sound designers in LORT theaters are represented by United Scenic Artists, Local USA-829 of the IATSE.

The Director and Choreographer are members of the STAGE DIRECTORS AND CHOREOGRAPHERS SOCIETY, a national theatrical labor union.

Arena Stage is a constituent of the Theatre Communications Group (TCG), the national organization for the American theater.

BEQUESTS AND GIFTS IN REMEMBRANCE

Thank you for leaving your legacy at Arena Stage.

You don’t have to be wealthy to make a significant gift. Bequests and other planned gifts allow you the opportunity to make a significant contribution that will ensure the future of Arena Stage. The Full Circle Society allows us the opportunity to recognize you for that gift during your lifetime. For more information about making a planned gift or to inform us of your existing planned gift, please contact Holly Oliver at 202-600-4029 or holiver@arenastage.org.

“We feel the long-term viability of theater really has to come from two sources — annual fundraising efforts and long-term donations [in the form of a planned gift] from the people who love the theater and are willing to commit to it in perpetuity.”

— Beth Newburger Schwartz and the late Richard Schwartz
